Transitional protection notes

- 1. Percentage of lifetime allowance used up: in most circumstances you must enter the percentage of the standard lifetime allowance which you have used up. If you hold, or have held, any of the fixed or individual protections you will need to report your lifetime allowance usage in respect of benefits crystallised when these protections were held, based on your personal lifetime allowance at that time. Please read the various protection notes below.
- 2. If your personal lifetime allowance has been lowered for any reason (e.g. as a result of a protected pension age), please do not take this reduction into account when reporting lifetime allowance usage.
- 3. Enhanced protection: if you are entitled to enhanced protection, we need to know the percentage of the standard lifetime allowance you have used up, as this may be relevant for calculating your pension commencement lump sum and will be needed for HMRC reporting purposes.
- 4. Primary protection: if you are entitled to primary protection, your personal lifetime allowance will be increased with reference to the underpinned lifetime allowance (e.g. if your lifetime allowance enhancement factor is 0.5, you will be entitled to a personal lifetime allowance of 150% of the underpinned lifetime allowance). In spite of this, you must show the percentage of the standard lifetime allowance you have used up, which may be more than 100%.
- 5. Fixed protection 2012: if you are entitled to fixed protection 2012, your personal lifetime allowance is increased from £1,073,100 to £1.8 million and you are also entitled to increased lump sum rights. Please base the percentage of the lifetime allowance you have used up whilst holding fixed protection 2012 on a lifetime allowance of £1,800,000. This may be more than 100%.
- 6. Fixed protection 2014: if you are entitled to fixed protection 2014, your personal lifetime allowance is £1,500,000 rather than the standard lifetime allowance of £1,073,100. Your lump sum rights are also increased to reflect your lifetime allowance. For any benefit crystallisation events that took place whilst you held fixed protection 2014, please base your lifetime allowance usage on a lifetime allowance of £1,500,000.
- 7. Fixed protection 2016: if you are entitled to fixed protection 2016, your personal lifetime allowance is £1,250,000 rather than the standard lifetime allowance of £1,073,100. Your lump sum rights are also increased to reflect your personal lifetime allowance. For any benefit crystallisation events that took place whilst you held fixed protection 2016 please base your lifetime allowance usage on a lifetime allowance of £1,250,000.
- 8. Individual protection 2014: if you are entitled to individual protection 2014, your personal lifetime allowance is set according to the value of your pension benefits at 5 April 2014. Your lump sum rights are also increased to reflect your protected lifetime allowance. When reporting the percentage of lifetime allowance you have used up at any benefit crystallisation events that occurred when you were relying on individual protection 2014, you should base the figure on your protected lifetime allowance.
- 9. Individual protection 2016: if you are entitled to individual protection 2016, your personal lifetime allowance is set according to the value of your pension benefits at 5 April 2016. Your lump sum rights are also increased to reflect your protected lifetime allowance. When reporting the percentage of lifetime allowance you have used up at any benefit crystallisation events that occurred when you were relying on individual protection 2016, you should base the figure on your protected lifetime allowance.

Lifetime allowance usage notes

1. You must take into account any benefits that:

- you have crystallised previously (including pre-commencement pensions, i.e. pensions that you vested before 6 April 2006) under this and any other pension arrangement
- the value of the benefits crystallised by the accompanying SIPP benefit form
- you are going to crystallise from any other pension arrangements at the same time as the benefits requested with this form

The administrators of your existing crystallised pension arrangements (if any) will have provided you with a statement or will be able to tell you how much of your lifetime allowance has been used up by the benefits under those arrangements.

2. The standard lifetime allowance for 2021/22 is £1,073,100.
